RUINS OF AN ANCIENT CITY IN THE LADRONES THE MARRIAGE VOW. Captain Alfred K. Fisher, of this town, informs us that <sup>4</sup>For better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health, to love and to cherish, till death us do part, seconding to God's Holy Ordinance—and thereunto I plight theo my troth."—Markiage Service of the Eriscophi Church.

Captain Alfred K. Fisher, of this town, informs us that when on his last whaling voyage, in the ship America, of New Bedford, (which was about eight years ago,) he had occasion to visit the Island of Tinian, (one of the Ladrone Islands,) to land some sick men. He stopped there some days. One of his men, in his walks about the island, came to the entrance of the main street of a large and splendid city, in ruins. Capt. Fisher, on being informed of the fact, entered the city by the principal street, which was about three miles in length. The buildings were all of stone, of a dark colour, and of the most splendid description. In about the centre of the main street he found twelve solid stone columns, six on each side of the atreet; they were about forty-five or fifty feet in height, surmounted by cap-stones of immense weight. The columns were ten feet in diameter at the base, and about three feet at the top. Capt. Fisher thinks the columns would weigh about sixty or seventy tone, and the capstones about fifteen tons. One of the columns had fallen, and he had a fine opportunity to view its vast proporand he had a fue opportunity to view its vast propor-tions and fine architecture. From the principal street a large number of other streets diverged. They were all straight, and the buildings were of storie. The whole of attaight, and the buildings were of storie. The whole of the city was entirely overgrown with cocoanut trees, which were fifty or sixty feet in height. In the main street, pieces of common earthenware were found. The island had been in possession of the Spaniards for a long time. Six or seven Spaniards resided on the island when Capt. Fisher was there. They informed him that the Spaniards had had possession about sixty years; that they took the island from the Knackas, who were entirely ignorant of the builders of the six, and if the fore inhabitants. When questioned as to the origin of the city, their only answer was, "There must have been a powerful race here a long time ago." Capt. Fisher also saw on the island immense ledges of stone, from which the buildings and columns had evidently been erected. Some portions of them exhibited signs of having seen worked. Here is food for speculation. Who were the founders of this once magnificent city in the North Pacific, and what has become of their descendants! Whatever the answer may be, they were evidently races of a very superior order. Edgartown (Mass.) Gazette.

Speak it not lightly-'tis a holy thing, A bond enduring through long distant years-When joy o'er thine abode is hovering, Or when thine eye is wet with bitterest tears, Recorded by an Angel's pen on high, And must be questioned in Eternity.

Speak it not lightly-though the young and gay Are thronging round thee now, with tones of mirth: Let not the holy promise of to-day

Fade like the clouds that with the morn have birth; But ever bright and sacred may it be Stored in the treasure-cell of memory

Life may not prove all sunshine-there will come Dark hours for all! O! will ye, when the night Of sorrow gathers thickly round your home, Love as ye did in time when calm and bright Seemed the sure path ye trod, untouched by care. And deemed the future, like the present-fair?

Eyes that now beam with health may yet grow dim, And checks of rose forget their early glow; Languor and pain assail each active limb And lay, perchance, some worshipped beauty low! Then will ye gaze upon the altered brow, And love as fondly, faithfully, as now.

Should Fortune frown on your defenceless head, Should storms o'ertake your barque on life's dark sea; Fierce tempests rend the sail so gaily spread, When Hope her syren strain sang joyfully-Will ye look up, though clouds your sky o'ereast,

And say- 'Together we will bide the blast!" Age, with its allvery locks, comes stealing one.

And brings the tottering step, the furrowed check,
The eye from whence each lustrous gleam hath gone,
And the stell its with And the pale lip, with accents low and weak;-Will ye then think upon your life's gay prime, And smiling, bid Love triumph over Time?

Speak it not lightly-O, beware, beware! Tis no vain promise, no unmeaning word-Lo! men and angels list the faith ye swear, And by the High and Holy One 'tis heard: O, then kneel humbly at His altar now, And pray for grace to keep your marriage vow.
